This book is a tribute to puppy raisers and their puppies. A Priceless Gift features Steven Harlan, who shares his experiences with Carmine, a Yellow Lab. A puppy raiser spends 24 hours a day seven days a week with a puppy. It can take up to 22 months to complete a puppy's basic training; then the puppy gets specialized training before being matched with an individual with a disability. As either a service dog, a guide dog or a social dog, these animals bring independence to a disabled person which truly is a priceless gift.
