Regarded as the "bad boy" of Italian fashion, Franco Moschino was one of the most popular designers of the 1980s. His anarchic collections using bold designs and striking prints often created fashion headlines. This volume presents a memoir of his work. The "Made in Italy" series is dedicated to the key figures in Italian fashion. The main section of each book traces the concepts and characteristics of a particular designer's work in both text and photographs. Interviews with members of staff, comments by style-setters such as Anna Wintour and Diana Vreeland, a chronology and a list of international boutique addresses, complete the guide.
